

Michael Sambir is the Director of Service Design at the Edmonton Public Library where he collaborates with system-wide team and project leads to design innovative library services that support the EPL business plan and other organizational priorities. He also leads the Research & Assessment area as well as the City of Learners initiative.

He has a Bachelor of Arts and also holds a Masters of Library and Information Studies from the University of Alberta. Before joining EPL he spent 10 years in healthcare with Alberta Health Services (AHS) where he worked in a variety of roles including Director of Clinical Policy Implementation & Evaluation, Senior Planner for the Edmonton Zone, and Provincial Initiatives Consultant in the Addiction & Mental Health portfolio developing provincial service design standards. Before that he spent 7 years with the ministry of Alberta Economic Development in the Business Information and Tourism Research areas.

Outside of work he is kept busy with family life (i.e. teenagers), long-distance running when there isn't snow on the ground, and haunting thrift shops and used book and record stores, searching for the ultimate score to feed his book, vinyl, and vintage clothing habits.
